

US, Iran closing in on deal: Report

American officials tell Axios an agreement to end war is within reach

WASHINGTON

THE United States and Iran appeared to be moving closer Wednesday to an initial agreement to end the war, as U.S. President Trump sought to pressure Tehran with threats of a new wave of bombing if a deal is not reached.

Trump posted on social media that the two-month war could soon end and that oil and natural gas shipments disrupted by the conflict could restart. But he said that depends on Iran accepting a reported agreement that the president did not detail. "If they don't agree, the bombing starts," Trump wrote.

Trump made his latest comments after he suspended a short-lived US effort to force open a safe passage for commercial ships through the Strait of Hormuz, a vital waterway through which major oil and gas supplies, fertilizer and other petroleum products passed before the war.

The White House believes it is near an agreement with Iran on a one-page memorandum to end the war, according to reporting by Axios. There is not an agreement yet, but the provisions include a moratorium on Iranian uranium enrichment, lifting of US sanctions, distribution of frozen Iranian funds and opening the strait for ships. The White House did not immediately respond to questions about the possible agreement.

Trump said in his social media post that it was "perhaps a big assumption" that Iran would agree to the terms being offered by the United States.

"If they don't agree, the bombing starts, and it will be, sadly, at a much higher level and intensity than it was before," Trump said. A shaky ceasefire between the US and Tehran has largely held since it began April 8.

France's aircraft carrier Charles de Gaulle heading towards the southern Red Sea to pre-position for a possible mission to restore navigation in Strait of Hormuz | AFP

France moves aircraft carrier toward Hormuz

Paris: France's aircraft carrier the Charles de Gaulle was on Wednesday heading towards the southern Red Sea to pre-position for a possible mission to restore navigation in the Strait of Hormuz, the presidency and defence ministry said. The move was intended to send "a signal that not only are we ready to secure the Strait of Hormuz but that we are also capable of doing so", one of the aides to President Emmanuel Macron told reporters. The French effort is distinct from the US "Project Freedom" mission, launched on Sunday and paused by US President Donald Trump on Tuesday evening.

President JD Vance, but the talks failed to result in a deal. Hundreds of merchant ships remain bottled up in the Persian Gulf, unable to reach the open sea without passing through the Strait of Hormuz.

The US said it had opened a safe shipping lane through the strait Monday and sunk six small Iranian boats that had threatened commercial ships. But Trump announced Tuesday he was pausing the effort, dubbed Project Freedom, to see whether an agreement with Tehran on ending the war could be reached. A cargo container ship operated by the CMA GGM

Group was damaged, and multiple crew members were wounded when it came under attack while transiting the strait Tuesday, the French shipping company said without providing details. It said the injured crew members were taken off the ship and are receiving medical treatment.

Oil prices and shipping will not likely return to normal until the risk of attacks in the strait has receded, said Kaho Yu, head of energy and resources at risk intelligence company Verisk Maplecroft. "Refiners, shippers and commodity traders will remain cautious until there is clearer evidence that Hormuz disruptions will not re-escalate," he said. Agencies

China eyes greater role in peace push

BEIJING

CHINA'S Foreign Minister Wang Yi said Beijing would play a "greater role" in ending hostilities in the Middle East during talks with his Iranian counterpart on Wednesday, a week before President Donald Trump is to meet Xi Jinping.

China is a key customer for Iranian oil, defying sanctions imposed by the United States, and is directly affected by the blockage of the Strait of Hormuz bordered by Iran.

Beijing has quietly engaged in efforts to resolve the week-long crisis and its diplomacy is credited with playing an important role in the ceasefire between Washington and Tehran.

China "will work harder to ease tensions and end the fighting, continue to support the launch of peace talks, and play a greater role in restoring peace and tranquility to the Middle East", Wang told Iran's Abbas Araghchi.

"China considers that a complete cessation of fighting must be achieved without delay, that it is even more unacceptable to restart hostilities, and that continuing to negotiate remains essential," Wang said.

Manufacturing giant China has been comparatively sheltered from fuel shortages thanks to oil reserves and renewable energy, but costs of oil-derived materials like plastic and fabric have risen significantly. More than half of the crude imported by sea to China comes from the West Asia and mainly transits through the Hormuz strait.

Two sick crew members and another person who had been in contact with one of the confirmed cases were taken from the ship, which was moored off Cape Verde, the WHO said.

They later boarded flights at the airport in Cape Verde's capital Praia. Plane tracker FlightRadar24 indicated one had taken off bound for Amsterdam, where it was due to land at 1730 GMT. The other flight, a medical transport plane, landed at Las Palmas in Spain's Canary Islands on Wednesday afternoon, an AFP journalist saw.

It has not been specified who was on the planes.

Health officials played down fears of a wider global outbreak from the virus, which is less contagious than Covid.

UN health agency chief Tedros told AFP it was not like the Covid-19 pandemic, adding: "The risk to the rest of the world is low."

The ship has been at the centre of an international health scare since Saturday, when the WHO was informed that three passengers had died and the suspected cause was hantavirus.

The rare respiratory disease is usually spread from infected rodents, typically through urine, droppings and saliva. Passengers began falling ill a month ago.

Man tests positive in Zurich, WHO rejects Covid-19 comparison

ZURICH

A former passenger on a cruise ship stricken by a deadly hantavirus outbreak is being treated in a Zurich hospital having tested positive for the disease, Swiss authorities said on Wednesday.

The man and his wife, both Swiss nationals, returned to Switzerland, having left the MV Hondius at the Atlantic Ocean island of Saint Helena, the Swiss health ministry told AFP. "One person has tested positive for hantavirus in Switzerland," said a ministry statement.

A medical plane that left Cape Verde following the evacuation of a cruise ship hit by the hantavirus landed in Spain's Canary Islands on Wednesday, while a second flight headed for the Netherlands.

Downplaying fears over the deadly outbreak aboard the MV Hondius, World Health Organization chief Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus insisted it was not comparable to the Covid pandemic.

As the WHO said emergency crews had evacuated three people from the ship, experts confirmed the version of the virus detected aboard the Hondius is a rare strain that can be transmitted between humans.

Starmer faces leadership test

LONDON

BRITISH voters will cast ballots Thursday in elections that could hasten the end of Prime Minister Keir Starmer's troubled term and confirm that an increasingly fractured United Kingdom has entered an era of messy multiparty politics.

Starmer's center-left Labour Party is expected to take a battering in elections for local authorities across England and for semiautonomous legislatures in Scotland and Wales.

With the prime minister's popularity in the doldrums from a weak economy and repeated questions about his judgment, rival parties are framing Thursday's votes as a referendum on Starmer and his 2-year-old government. "Vote Reform, Get Starmer Out" is the campaign slogan of the hard-right party Reform UK.

The next national election does not have to be held until 2029, but a wipeout on Thursday could tip a restive Labour Party into revolt against its unpopular leader. Less than two years after winning a landslide election victory, "Keir Starmer has become a vessel for people's disappointment (and) disillusionment," said Luke Tryl of pollster More in Common.

Starmer's popularity has plunged after repeated missteps since he became prime minister. His government has struggled to deliver promised economic growth, repair tattered public services and ease the cost of living - tasks made harder by the US-Israeli war with Iran.

Musk's SpaceX to invest $55 bn on chip project

WASHINGTON

US billionaire Elon Musk's SpaceX plans to invest at least $55 billion to build a semiconductor manufacturing facility in Texas, according to a public notice on Wednesday, producing chips for artificial intelligence, robotics and data centers in space.

The world's richest person has said the new facility, dubbed Terafab, would be run jointly by his electric-vehicle firm Tesla and his rocket company SpaceX.

Initial investment would be "$55 billion, with an estimated total capital investment (if additional phases are constructed) of $119 billion", according to a notice of public hearing in Grimes County, Texas, where the upcoming facility will be located, about 110 kilometres northwest of Houston.

Terafab "would represent a transformative investment in domestic semiconductor manufacturing capacity", according to a description of the project in the notice.

Musk, who has no prior experience in semiconductor, has said Terafab is necessary because Tesla and SpaceX's demand for computing power is expected to far exceed that of global chip suppliers.

Eventually, the project aims to make chips to support 100 to 200 gigawatts of computing power on Earth, and a terawatt in space. The Grimes County commissioners court was set to meet on June 3 to discuss approving a property tax abatement for the project, according to the notice.

CNN founder Ted Turner no more

NEW YORK

TED Turner, the flamboyant US entrepreneur who transformed television news with the creation of CNN in 1980, has died at the age of 87, the network said Wednesday.

A brash risk taker, Turner helped reshape the American television industry in the late 20th century.

He created CNN in 1980, revolutionizing the way America, and the world, got their news, and then went on to become one of the most prominent business leaders and philanthropists of his era.

He also made a name for himself with spectacular business deals, his ownership of professional sports clubs, a marriage to actress Jane Fonda, his leadership of a competitive yachting team and then a devotion to charitable and environmental causes.

Born in Cincinnati, Ohio in November 1938, Robert Edward "Ted" Turner III went to a military boarding school in Tennessee, and then attended Brown University, but was expelled before graduating.

Turner took over a faltering family advertising business after his father, Edward Turner, despondent over financial problems, committed suicide.

After buying a number of radio stations, Turner's purchase of a struggling Atlanta station in 1970 was his first move into television.

Ten years later, that became the flagship of his nationwide Turner Broadcasting System, the profits from which he parlayed into the launch of CNN.

CNN launched in 1980 as the first 24-hour cable news network, gaining traction in the United States and later internationally.

TED TURNER NOV 19, 1938 - MAY 6, 2026

The launch came as viewers were shifting from broadcast to cable and CNN became a key source of news during the 1990-1991 Gulf War, delivering extensive live coverage using satellite technology.

CNN's success inspired the creation of other 24-hour news channels including Fox News by long-time Turner rival Rupert Murdoch, MSNBC and countless station worldwide.

Turner's television empire expanded well beyond CNN and included TBS and TNT channels for sports and entertainment, Turner Classic Movies and Cartoon Network, among many others.

As his television empire expanded, Turner made a failed bid to acquire CBS in the 1980s and then briefly acquired MGM/UA Entertainment Co. studios.

Turner sold the Hollywood group back months later, while keeping the rights to large portions of its catalog including films from MGM.

He managed to land even bigger deals in the 1990s when Turner Broadcasting merged with Time Warner in 1996, making him vice chairman of the media-entertainment powerhouse.
